

OCT 3 1967

COPYRIGHT

Hanoi Trips Cost 28 Passports

By J. Y. Smith

Washington Post Staff Writer

A person whose passport has been revoked can have it reinstated if he convinces the Department that he intends to abide by travel regulations in future.

This has been done in the cases of seven persons on the list of 28, including that of Herbert Aptheker, a well-known member of the Communist Party of the U.S.A. Aptheker made a "peace" trip

The State Department made available yesterday a list of 28 Americans whose passports it revoked because they visited North Vietnam in violation of travel regulations.

Similar action is now being studied in the case of Mrs. Dagmar Wilson of Washington, the head of Women's Strike for Peace, and two companions, Mrs. Mary Clarke of Los Angeles and Mrs. Ruth Krause of Englewood, N.J. The three visited Hanoi on a private "peace" mission last month.

Action may also be taken against Stokeley Carmichael, the Black Power leader, for visiting Hanoi. Carmichael's passport has already been revoked because of an illegal trip he made to Cuba.

On Aug. 3, the State Department, following its usual procedure in such cases, mailed a letter to Carmichael's home in the Bronx, New York advising him that his passport was invalid because of his Cuban sojourn.

Stokeley Still Abroad

Carmichael went from Cuba to Hanoi and thus has not received the letter. But the Department considers that the revocation is effective from the time the letter is sent, not from the time it is received. In the case of persons outside the country, the passport is considered to be valid only for return to the United States.

In the meantime, according to Department press officer Carl E. Barch, the list of 28 names made available yesterday includes all the persons against whom action has been taken since travel to North Vietnam was first restricted in 1964.

The regulations now in force say that American citizens may not visit North Vietnam unless their passports are specially validated for that purpose by the State Department.

One of those whose passport was returned, a Ralph B. Schoenman, later made a second trip to North Vietnam and lost his travel document for a second time.

In releasing the list, the State Department declined to give any information other than the names of those whose passports were revoked.

Names Are Listed

The list included:

Apthekers and Lynd; Diane Bevel, wife of James Bevel of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; the crew of the Quaker ship, Phoenix, which sailed to Haiphong on a "peace" mission earlier this year: Earle L. Reynolds, captain, Karl P. Zietlow, Horace Champney, Robt. W. Eaton, Phillip V. Drath, Mrs. Elizabeth Boardman and Ivan Masser, Jr.; William Worthy, a newsman whose passport also was revoked after visits to Communist China and Hungary in 1956-57; Ralph B. Schoenman, secretary to Bertrand Russell, and David Delinger, editor of the Pacifist Liberation magazine.

Also, Carol Brightman, Barbara Deming, Nicholas Egleston, Abraham Feinberg, John Gerassi, Lena Greene, Patricia Griffith, Thomas E. Hayden, Jon Christopher Koch, A. J. Muste (deceased), Michael Gene Myerson, Grace Newman, Russell D. Stetler, Jr., Harold D. Supriano and Richard E. Ward.